Rapid Response Team

Rapid Response Team is a short-term intervention designed to support children who may be experiencing challenging behaviors in the early learning setting. This team observes the child at the child care facility and will offer strategies to the teacher and parent. If appropriate, referrals to community resources and services are shared with the family and provider as well.

*If you have concerns that your child may be suspended or expelled from child care and could benefit from the Rapid Response Team supports, you can begin the referral process here: RRT Referral
(This program does require parental and provider consent)*

Teaching and Modeling Compassion

Teaching young children about generosity and compassion can be a rewarding experience! Here are some effective tips:

1. Lead by Example: Demonstrate charitable behavior in your own life. Involve children in acts of kindness, such as donating clothes or helping a neighbor.
2. Storytelling: Share stories and books that highlight themes of generosity and kindness. Discuss the characters' actions and the impact they have on others.
3. Involve Them in Choices: Let children help choose a charity or cause they care about. This can make them feel more connected and invested.
4. Set Up a Giving Jar: Encourage them to save a portion of their allowance or gifts for charity. Once the jar is full, take a trip to donate it together.
5. Volunteer Together: Find age-appropriate volunteer opportunities, such as helping at a local shelter or participating in community clean-up days.
6. Discuss Empathy: Talk about feelings and how helping others can make a difference. Encourage them to think about how they would feel in someone else's shoes.

7. Celebrate Giving: Recognize and praise their charitable efforts, no matter how small. Celebrate their contributions to reinforce the behavior.
8. Make It Fun: Organize charity events, like bake sales or toy drives, where they can engage in giving while having fun with friends.
9. Teach About Needs: Explain why some people might need help, using simple language. Tailor discussions to their understanding and experiences.
10. Create a Kindness Calendar: Plan daily or weekly acts of kindness, encouraging children to think of new ways to help others regularly.

By incorporating these tips, you can help instill a sense of compassion and a desire to give in young children!

Child Development

Exercise in the Winter is Fun!

The colder it gets outside, the more we tend to stay indoors, but research shows that when children play outdoors it promotes learning, curiosity and it builds strong muscles. It improves their mood and behavior as well! Children need at least sixty minutes of vigorous exercise daily, even in the winter. So, look for opportunities to get your child outdoors and moving!

If children are dressed appropriately and the temperature is not below freezing, it is safe for children to play outside but they need to dress in layers and wear a hat, scarf, mittens, and boots as needed. Have them practice putting on their boots and mittens by themselves to build their independence.

Once your child is dressed appropriately, go outdoors together. Visit their favorite playground, play soccer in the snow or give them a child sized snow shovel to clear your sidewalk. Sledding and building snowmen is fun too! Children learn best when they can engage their whole bodies in an activity and wintertime provides unique opportunities to enjoy nature, build lifelong memories and promote healthy physical development.

Reduce Your Risk from Respiratory Viruses

The CDC expects Flu, COVID-19, and RSV illness levels to increase in the winter. The holidays bring large gatherings, travel, and more time indoors, which can mean more viruses spreading. There are strategies to help us stay healthy so we can enjoy the time we spend with our families and friends.

Some prevention steps include:

- Immunizations - Make sure you know which ones are recommended and make a plan to get them. You can talk to your healthcare provider if you have questions about immunizations.
- Staying home and away from others when you are sick (including people you live with)
- Covering coughs and sneezes
- Improving ventilation
- Washing hands often

Family Engagement

Taking Along a Song

Traveling is a great place to learn and expand vocabulary. Infants often find the movement of travel soothing, while toddlers and preschoolers enjoying singing songs in the car.

Key Learning Area: Creative Thinking and Expression

Infant: Sing to your infant about where you are going and how you will get there. Use different tones and volumes while singing.

Toddler: Sing to your toddler about where you are going and how you will get there. Sing what the two of you will do once you are there.

Pre-Kindergarten and Kindergarten: While at the library, help your child choose a book about the different ways to travel, then on the way home, make up a song. Sing about different ways to travel (like on a horse, or in a helicopter, or in a race car, for example).
